

University of Birmingham - Collaborative Teaching Laboratory - Case Study

The Collaborative Teaching Laboratory opened to students in October 2018. The space provides teaching facilities for science and engineering students. The new building is part of £40m of investment in STEM subjects.

We provided a sign scheme fitting for the space. Externally, we've provided modern, cut letters. Internally, we feature black way-finding panels with white acrylic lettering and graphic manifestations to glass.

